PATCHES.

-"Who was first into the breach?" asked Professor Stearns when the class in history was up. "The patch," said the new smart boy. But the Professor marked him one minus and said: "No; the hole was in before the patch."

The amount of bullion gone into the bank on balance to day sharply, said; "Fare!" "No," said the woman, "Fowl." And everybody cackled.

Phenomenon—Whom the course of a very long speech yesterday, called for

Still, we must bear in mind the fact that the market is so entirely destitute of momentary arguments that the operators thereon are glad to depend on the most "hair-brained" excuses for making a change of prices. We still see the indisputable argument which has been staring as in the face for months past. The late severe winter has greatly damaged all the roads and caused expenditures so great as to prevent their paying legitimate dividends; in fact, it has run them into debt; and yet, in the face of all this, their stocks have steadily advanced. We iraw no conclusions, but merely ask the question, bility of Iron Mountain paying a dividend in the near future has been loudly discussed. The following facts will be of Interest on that subject: Last year, with the former has been loughly discussed. The following facts will be of interest on that subject: Last year, with the largest earnings on record, the company was unable to pay interest on the first and second preferred income honds (together amounting to over $0.00,000.) These bonds pay respectively 6 and 7 per cent. Interest, which is accommulative, and the debt has to be carried over to the next year. At the last stockholders' meeting the proposition was accepted to exchange these bonds for 5 per cent. consolidation bonds. This, of course, would result in a diminution of the interest charges. But the bonds now extant are paying 6 and 7 per cent. interest, which is accommulative, and the holders will be loth to exchange these bonds for a 5 per cent. security. But even granted such an exchange can be effected, it is more than counterbalanced by the proposed issue of additional mortbalanced by the proposed issue
